

WilmerHale Cybersecurity, Privacy and Communications Webinar Series: Trends in Privacy Law

JUNE 14, 2016

In this session of the 2016 Cybersecurity, Privacy and Communications Webinar Series, WilmerHale Partners Jonathan Cedarbaum, Felicia Ellsworth and Mark Flanagan discuss current trends in privacy law including:

- the recent Spokeo v. Robins decision and the potential limitations it places on the ability of plaintiffs to rely solely on statutory damages to establish Article III standing;
- the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act's (CFAA) private right of action and what the CFAA's prohibition on "exceed[ing] authorized access" means for understanding the CFAA's "damage or loss" requirements;
- how courts interpret exceptions to the Wiretap Act's prohibition on intercepting, disclosing or using communications, as well as "electronic storage" under the Stored Communications Act; and
- litigation under state privacy statutes and common law theories.
