

Stroz Friedberg Boston Breakfast Seminar

NOVEMBER 15, 2016

Software controls the operation or creation of almost everything we touch and use, and inevitably, parties fight over software source code in litigation. Surprisingly, then, the law and common practice are quite unsettled about basic matters regarding discovery, production, and infringement where software is involved.

In this approachable and entertaining talk, WilmerHale Partner Monica Grewal and other seasoned practitioners and industry leaders will discuss the unique nature of software code, and the practical ways to navigate these issues successfully in litigation.
