JANUARY 26, 2017

In this session of the WilmerHale Cybersecurity, Privacy and Communications Webinar Series, we explore privacy and cybersecurity law, enforcement, and policy under the Trump Administration and the 115th Congress.

WilmerHale Partners Reed Freeman and Jonathan Yarowsky, and Counsel Kirsten Donaldson discuss potential relevant legislation in the 115th Congress as well as likely upcoming changes at the US Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and US Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Topics of discussion include:

- an overview of the FCC's broadband privacy rule and whether it may be amended in a new administration;
- what to expect from the FTC in terms of privacy and data security investigations and enforcement actions under Section 5 of the FTC Act;
- upcoming proposals in Congress to watch for related to privacy and cybersecurity legislation; and
- an overview of what to expect from Congress regarding FTC and FCC oversight.
