

The George Washington University Law School's Forum on Financial Responsibility in Communities of Color

DECEMBER 1, 2017

The George Washington University Law School's Forum on Financial Responsibility in Communities of Color will feature three round table discussions focused on issues such as financial literacy and financial decision-making, market participation and investment opportunities, access to appropriate financial products, as well as securities and investment fraud. The forum brings together academics, practitioners and regulators not only to discuss the range of financial concerns that were highlighted by the most recent financial crisis and the manner in which those concerns impact communities of color, but also to advance practical solutions for responding to those concerns.

WilmerHale Partner Andre Owens and Special Counsel Petal Walker will participate in the forum.
