

ABA Section of Antitrust Law/Stanford Law School: Antitrust and Innovation Symposium

MAY 20-21, 2010

The ABA Section of Antitrust Law and Stanford Law School have assembled a first-rate group of leading scholars, current and former enforcement officials, and practitioners to examine the role of antitrust policy in fostering innovation. Particular focus will be placed on discussion and analysis of (1) the extent to which competition policy affects the direction and rate of innovation, and (2) the ways in which current antitrust policies in the United States and other jurisdictions are likely to further or hinder the widely-accepted policy goal of encouraging innovation and dynamic competition.

WilmerHale partner Hartmut Schneider will speak on the topic of "Standard Setting and Patent Pools" at this event.
