

MassBio: Changes & Future Trends in the Cambridge Vector of Life Sciences

CAMBRIDGE, MA

The life sciences landscape in greater Kendall Square and MA has changed dramatically in the last decade. With the arrival of big pharma R&D centers starting with Novartis in 2002, the explosion of incubators across MA, and the migration of technology and digital media companies to Cambridge and Boston, we have seen profound and sweeping changes. From accelerating rents to massive new construction projects housing campuses for big pharma R&D, nowhere has this change been more profound than in Cambridge, and the face and fate of Kendall Square has and continues to evolve rapidly.

What do these seismic evolutions augur for our future?

Attend this event for a glimpse into the future of Kendall Square and learn how these changes may impact biotech companies and their stakeholders in Cambridge and the surrounding areas.
