

MassTLC: 2015 Healthcare Conference

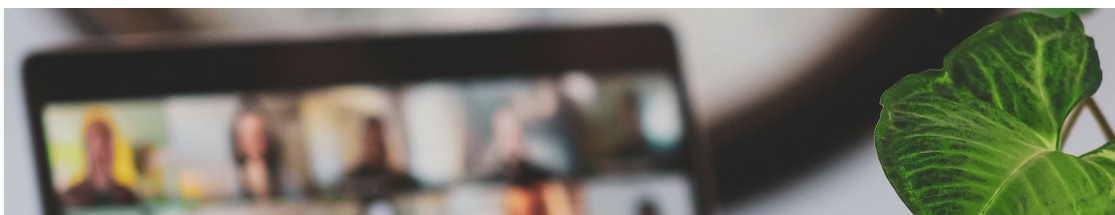

BOSTON, MA

As the healthcare industry takes on the monumental task of moving toward an outcomes-based and customer-centric care model, technology is increasingly playing a more critical role in the lives of every player within the healthcare ecosystem—from CIO to clinician to consumer. Technology, while not a panacea for the myriad of changes facing the healthcare industry, is and will continue to offer innovations that will help to make new models of emerging, value-based care a reality.

Join MassTLC for this half-day conference which offers a forum for those within the healthcare industry—from providers to payers to technologists—to explore the issues each party is facing as they manage the transition to a care model focused first and foremost on prevention.
