

New England Clean Energy Council: Clean Energy Fellowship

2009-07-01

The Clean Energy Fellowship Program, planned by the New England Clean Energy Council, is an innovative entrepreneurial development program designed to rapidly transition experienced entrepreneurs and executives into the region's clean energy sector. Through a curriculum including seminars, lectures, case studies, lab visits, and capstone projects, the Fellowship Program addresses a simple but acute problem: a lack of repeat entrepreneurs in the sector — a critical ingredient in venture formation, funding, and growth.

WilmerHale partner Mark Kalpin was a featured speaker for this course. He spoke on the topic of "Addressing Renewable Energy Project Development Risk."
