

Practising Law Institute: Venture Capital 2015: Nuts and Bolts

APRIL 29, 2015

A thorough understanding of current market practice, deal terms and conditions, transaction documents and applicable securities, regulatory and ethical issues is critical in the venture capital business. This program, designed for those seeking a secure foundation in the venture capital field, will teach you the essentials of venture capital. From examining the anatomy of a venture capital deal, to participating in a mock term sheet negotiation, to exploring key issues in follow-on financing rounds, exit strategies and securities law compliance, our faculty of lawyers, venture capitalists and business executives will analyze the legal and business issues you need to master to actively and successfully participate in today's venture capital environment. You will also learn about the latest financing trends, regional differences in deal practice, and ethical issues that arise when representing startups and venture-backed companies.

WilmerHale Partner Jeff Stein will be a featured speaker on the panel entitled, "Key Issues in Follow-On Financing Rounds."
