

The International Association of Young Lawyers: International Arbitration: Is Russia Different?

2008-06-27

The seminar, presented by The AIJA International Arbitration Commission & the IBA, was designed for all lawyers and in-house counsel interested in international arbitration and for those who have business in Russia and/or with Russian clients and want to be prepared to handle any potential future disputes. In addition, this seminar provided attendees with the opportunity to establish and/or further develop relationships with colleagues from other firms and countries.

WilmerHale partner Franz Schwarz was a featured speaker at this seminar. He spoke on the topic of "To what extent should the tribunal be affected by local procedural traditions? - the arbitrator's and the common law perspective."
