

The Supreme Court Cases Challenging the Constitutionality of the Affordable Care Act

2012-01-23

The panelists discussed the cases in the Supreme Court challenging the constitutionality of the individual mandate provision in the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA), the watershed health reform law enacted in March 2010. Panel participants analyzed the various arguments and offer their thoughts about how the Supreme Court could approach consideration of the cases.

Former WilmerHale Partner Randolph Moss was a featured speaker at this event, and Senior Associate Madhu Chugh moderated the panel discussion.
