

TiE-Boston: CleanTech and Energy & FTI

2008-04-10

Understanding the intellectual property, contractual and financial issues inherent in participating in clean technology industries is critical to successfully obtaining financing, identifying, protecting and commercializing intellectual property assets, partnering with companies and the government, and planning for tax and government incentives, exit strategies, and the possibility of litigation. With speakers from the business, financial, legal and governmental sectors, this conference, presented by TiE-Boston, will offer both the innovators, and the attorneys and financial professionals that work with them, the practical knowledge needed to navigate the myriad of challenges faced as they strive to protect the environment.
