Lisa Pirozzolo, co-chair of the firm's Intellectual Property Litigation Practice, has been welcomed as a member of the Boston Bar Foundation's Society of Fellows. The Society of Fellows is comprised of more than 400 of Boston's top attorneys, who are dedicated to leadership, pro bono and public service and promoting justice in the legal system.

The Society of Fellows is dedicated to expanding access to justice and improving the community. Members of the Society of Fellows make a financial pledge to contribute to the Boston Bar Foundation's endowment, creating a stable foundation for the BBF's essential work to continue long into the future. Each pledge is a permanent gift to the Boston Bar Foundation, providing support for helping thousands of individuals and families through pro bono programs, grants to legal services organizations and opportunities for Boston youth.

"The Boston Bar Foundation plays such a critical role in promoting equal access to justice and supporting organizations that provide legal services to individuals in need. I am an enthusiastic supporter of this important work and very happy to be joining the Society of Fellows," noted Ms. Pirozzolo.
