
INDIA New England News Features Monica Grewal Among Women of the Year

MAY 13, 2019

INDIA New England News has featured Monica Grewal, co-chair of WilmerHale's Post-Grant Proceedings Practice, in its Women of the Year series that profiles South Asian women in New England who have achieved phenomenal success in both the business and social arenas. In her Q&A with INDIA New England News published earlier this month, Grewal discusses her journey from a NASA engineer to intellectual property lawyer.

Grewal is a Boston-based partner with experience handling significant IP matters for clients, including building strategic patent portfolios in a range of technology in the disciplines of electrical, mechanical, biomedical devices and computer engineering. Having an extensive background in intellectual property and advanced engineering, she often combines her knowledge in both fields to effectively assist her clients in reaching their objectives.
