
Law360 Names WilmerHale a Technology Group of the Year

JANUARY 23, 2017

The firm has been recognized by Law360 as a Technology Practice Group of the Year, showcasing some of the firm's significant successes for clients during the calendar year of 2016. WilmerHale is one of only four firms honored for their work with technology companies.

In an exceedingly competitive market, technology companies demand the counsel of lawyers with a deep-rooted understanding of the business and regulatory issues driving the industry. WilmerHale has handled complex issues relevant to technology companies, tackling matters from cybersecurity to antitrust and intellectual property to regulatory. As highlighted in Law360's winning profile of the firm, WilmerHale's experience and ability to serve the vast needs of today's most innovative technology companies helped earn the firm this recognition as one of the leading technology practices in the country.
