
Prominent Silicon Valley Lawyer Elected to Joint Venture Board of Directors

2005-09-26

Curtis L. Mo was elected to the board of directors of Joint Venture: Silicon Valley Network. Joint Venture President and CEO Russell Hancock made the announcement.

Hancock praised the election. “Curtis Mo is recognized as one of the leading corporate and securities lawyers in the Silicon Valley. We’re delighted by the influence and expertise he now brings to bear on the Joint Venture agenda.”

“Joint Venture is an organization with a big vision and a down-in-the-trenches approach,” commented Mr. Mo. “I’ve long admired their work, and I’m honored to be of service.”

Mr. Mo has represented a wide variety of companies—ranging from startups to Fortune 500 companies— and financial institutions in hundreds of public offerings, venture capital financings, mergers and acquisitions, and other complex deals. Mr. Mo was selected as a “Dealmaker of the Year” in 2003 by The American Lawyer.

To learn more about Joint Venture: Silicon Valley Network, click here.