
WilmerHale Named “Technology Law Firm of the Year” Finalist

2007-01-24

For the second year running, WilmerHale is a finalist in the esteemed UK Technology Innovation & Growth Forum’s “Technology Law Firm of the Year” award contest. Out of a record number of entries received for the award, the firm is one of only five shortlisted for this honor. The UK Technology Innovation & Growth Forum bases its selection on the strength and talent of a firm’s corporate practice and its preeminence in the representation of technology companies.

WilmerHale, a finalist and a winner in past years’ contests, is regularly recognized for its consistent track record of successful and extensive work with European technology companies.

Now in its ninth year, The UK Technology Innovation & Growth Awards continues to recognize companies and individuals that demonstrate the insight and commitment vital to the health and growth of the UK technology industry. The winner of the “Technology Law Firm of the Year” award, along with 13 other award categories, will be named at the annual awards dinner to be held in London on March 13, 2007.