Adrian White serves as Chief Information Officer (CIO) and Chief Administrative Officer (CAO) for WilmerHale.

As CIO, he leads the firm's Information Services Department responsible for information technology and security, data analytics, information governance, records, project management, business relationship management, research, library, contract administration, procurement, and technology training across the firm's global footprint.

In his capacity as CAO, Mr. White leads the Administration/Operations Department of the firm including such functions as emergency response, facilities management, real estate leasing and construction projects, food service, conference scheduling, event planning, physical security, casualty insurance, travel, reprographics, and office administration.

During the pandemic, he led the firm's crisis management team in addressing COVID-19 issues such as office closings and openings, safely protocols, and matters related to return-to-work.

Mr. White worked at the firm from 1999 to 2012, during which time he held positions of increasing responsibility. Before returning to the firm in 2016, he served as chief information officer at Arnold & Porter.
