

Amanda L. Major

PARTNER

WASHINGTON DC
+ 1 202 663 6304
AMANDA.MAJOR@WILMERHALE.COM

Amanda Major is a trial lawyer whose practice focuses on intellectual property litigation and technology-related disputes. Ms. Major has represented both patent holders and accused infringers in many technology areas, including small molecule and biologic therapies, diagnostics, medical devices, semiconductors and communications protocols. She has experience litigating in federal district courts, in domestic and international arbitrations, before the US International Trade Commission, and before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. Her practice also extends to pre-litigation analysis, counseling and licensing matters.

In May 2023, Litigation Daily (of The American Lawyer) recognized Ms. Major and the WilmerHale team as Litigator of the Week for their trial win for Dropbox, Inc. in the Western District of Texas. There, after a week-long trial, the jury ruled in favor of Dropbox, declaring non-infringement, the absence of entitlement to the priority date claimed by the plaintiff and the invalidity of the asserted patents.

Ms. Major is a member of WilmerHale's DC Hiring Committee and the Associates Committee.

Solutions

Litigation

Intellectual Property Litigation

White Collar Defense and Investigations

Life Sciences

Trials

Credentials

EDUCATION

JD, Stanford Law School, 2004

Articles Editor, Stanford Law Review

BA, Wake Forest University,
2001

Phi Beta Kappa

ADMISSIONS

District of Columbia

New York