
FinTech

Representing FinTech clients throughout their lifecycles.

There are few law firms that provide FinTech legal counsel in the varying areas that WilmerHale does, and we believe we are among the elite firms that can advise on all of the material issues that financial institutions, corporate clients and FinTech emerging companies must navigate in this rapidly evolving market sector. At WilmerHale, FinTech is a multi-disciplinary team of lawyers that leverages our deep and broad experience across practices. We provide counsel to mature and emerging FinTech companies; companies engaged in FinTech transactions and/or making investments in FinTech-enabled services; exchanges and online platforms; investment banks; and venture capital, private equity and hedge fund firms. Our team advises clients on a wide range of FinTech-related matters and issues, including general corporate matters; M&A and joint venture transactions; FinTech-enabled services, including mobile applications and outsourcing; capital markets and other financings, including venture capital investments; regulatory and compliance matters; data security and privacy; vendor management; and intellectual property and patent litigation. WilmerHale was ranked among the leading law firms for FinTech work in the 2023 edition of Chambers FinTech. Clients referred to the firm as the "gold standard."
